Visits.

During the year the committee members visited the house on their unscheduled visits and found all inmates in a good and contented manner. The house and grounds were always in a neat and tidy condition and likewise the kitchen area which received an excellent report from “Fáilte Ireland” and attained a Pass Certificate being in pristine condition on each of our inspections.

No annual visit was carried out to any other institution during the year on the instruction of the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform.

Education

The education unit continues to offer an excellent range of subjects to the inmates from basic literacy skills up to comprehensive third level courses. Such diverse subjects and topics as cookery skills , woodwork and parenting skills are on offer. Inmates continue to attend this unit on an enthusiastic and totally voluntary basis.

In addition inmates attend courses outside Loughan House whenever the opportunity and demand arises

The CAIT initiative

This continues to be in use seven days of the week and has a high level of participation from the inmates. Inmates have benefited greatly from this facility and it compliments the activities ongoing in the education area.

Probation and Welfare Service.

There is a full time Probation and Welfare Officer attached to Loughan House. Mr. Colin Halligan was replaced by Ms. Tracey Kelly during the year. A good service is provided with inmates making good use of the service. A pre-release substance abuse programme is run in the institution by this service in conjunction with the Education unit and the North Western Health Board with inmates very willing to participate.

Pre-release Programme

A formal pre-release programme called "New Horizons" is running in Loughan House and this should greatly assist inmates when they are released as it covers all practical aspects of living in the community following release. The topics and skills learned include Safe Pass Certification, Forklift training, Personal Finance Management and Men's Health

External Agencies

The needs of the inmates continues to be attended to by members of Alcoholics Anonymous when they have volunteers available. The Samaritans continue to promote their service within the institution through the provision of informative documentation and the help of the various bodies within the institution itself.

Health Care.

The provision of health care continues to be provided by our two visiting doctors and dental surgeon to a very high standard. Psychiatric and Psychology services are provided whenever the need arises.

Kitchen

A wide and varied menu is provided on a daily basis to inmates. During the year, eleven (11) inmates, who work in the kitchen area, completed a Primary Course in Food Hygiene. Also, six (6) Staff, who work in the kitchen area, successfully completed a Management of Food Hygiene Course.

Inmates Requests.

During the year twelve (12) inmates requested to meet with the Committee. All inmates were given the opportunity to speak to the Committee in an unhindered manner. Inmates requests to the committee are dealt with promptly but none complained about their treatment in Loughan House. Inmates expressed a high level of satisfaction with the staff and the facilities provided.

Chaplaincy

The spiritual needs of the inmates are attended to by a visiting chaplain from the local parish. Mass is celebrated on a weekly basis and on all the various feast days during the year. On the 20th November 2004, Bishop Leo O'Reilly celebrated a Mass in Loughan House. This Mass was recorded for broadcast on the local Radio Station, Ocean FM. The chaplain is available to attend to any inmate whenever called upon to do so and is greatly assisted by Sister Ellen Wallace who attends on a regular basis. The requirements of all inmates of whatever religious persuasion are attended to as required.

Maintenance & New Developments.

The members would like to thank the Governor and all his staff for the way they have maintained the buildings and grounds. The general environment of Loughan House was consistent with good residential care and would have greatly contributed to the comfort of its inmates. Refurbishment of the inmates rooms is ongoing.

A new Building, to accommodate Administration, Visiting Area, and Workshop is near completion and due to be handed over in December 2004.

Environmental Management System

Loughan House's Environmental Management System continues to work well and is contributing greatly to the local environment and raising awareness of environmental matters.

The 'Poly Tunnels' are to be completed and handed over in December 2004 thus clearing the way for the contaminated earth to be recycled in an environmentally efficient manner. This project, with the involvement of inmates, will educate those involved in the finer aspects of recycling and efficient environmental procedures.

Library

The library service continues to be provided by Cavan County Library. It is a valuable and well run service open three times a week under the care of a dedicated part time Librarian. Inmates make great use of this service.

In conclusion, we the Members of the Loughan House Visiting Committee would agree that Loughan House provided a good cost effective service to its residents and continues to review and upgrade the services it provides.. We would like to compliment the Governor and Staff for the commitment and dedication they give to the well being of the inmates in their care. Finally we would like to thank the Governor and all his Staff for the courtesy and co-operation extended to us on all our visits throughout the year.
